For Infants and Children.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Bears the Signature of J. C. Hanson

How much money will the average farmer of Saline county clear this season? Every man, woman and child in the county is directly or indirectly interested in this question; for agriculture is at the basis of all prosperity. Weather, market conditions and many other causes will enter into the calculation, but the energy, industry and good common sense of the farmer and his family are the most important factors. Our farmers are the most progressive in the country and are always on the alert for the newest and best methods. Many of them are subscribers for The Farmer and Stockman, of Kansas City, Missouri, an exponent of both practical and scientific agriculture; and many more are seeing each year the importance of reading a good agricultural paper. The Marshall Republican is glad to announce that we have made a 25c clubbing arrangement with The Farmer and Stockman (a $1.00 paper.) Come in and subscribe for it next time you are in town. It will cost you but a small amount in comparison with its value, and it will help you to make money with your farm.

Zellers Arrested

L. R. Zellers, the popular miller of Blackburn, was arrested last Saturday on a charge brought by a transient insurance agent who is making Marshall his headquarters.

When seen by the editor, Mr. Zeller said that the agent was introduced to him by a Blackburn friend of his and talked to him a long time on insurance. Finally he consented to the man writing up two policies subject to his approval, saying he would take one if satisfactory.

The policies were delivered Saturday morning and he said he would look them over at noon and hand the man a check after dinner if satisfactory. He read them over at noon and said he found they were not as explained to him and so he refused to take either one. The agent and the business man then called on him and tried to talk him into taking it, finally threatening to "do" him if he did not take one.

On threatening to "do" him he said he would use a shotgun on them if they didn't leave him alone.

They then threatened his arrest and again offered to drop the matter if he agreed to accept a policy. He refused and the arrest followed. He is out on bond signed by Attorney Reynolds.

We understand the other side of the story is that they simply threatened to "sue" if the policy was not accepted.

Mr. Zellers is a popular and genial man who is anxious to avoid trouble and the arrest seems foolish. He stands well in the community.

SECRET IN HIEROGLYPHICS

Mystic Characters in a Mexican Temple Have Never Been Translated.

The most perfect piece of prehistoric architecture in the new world is the wonderful "mosaic chamber," situated among the famous ruins of the ancient city of Mitla, 300 miles south of the City of Mexico. Although months have been spent by prominent travelers, writers and archaeologists in the attempt to read the history of this old city from the hieroglyphics yet visible on its walls, the only thing known today of Mitla or its buildings is that it stands there in Mexico, a marvel of architecture, of temples and palaces, grouped on a slight elevation beside a narrow stream. Even the name of Mitla is of unknown origin.

But while every structure of which this group is composed is covered within and without with mosaics, it remains for the great hall known as the "mosaic chamber" to reveal the work at its best. The marvelous part is that there is not a single piece of the mosaic from the entire room. These mosaics were put together without the aid of cement or mortar.

Some portion of the ruins of Mitla had been covered with sand for unknown centuries when the Mexican government began excavating, but the larger portion of the buildings were above ground, exposed to the elements. About 275 years ago one of the Mitla temples was torn down and a church built with the stones. This the natives call the "new church," although it is nearly 300 years old.

Beneath one of the temples of Mitla an underground chamber has been found and under this is believed to be another subterranean room, which the Mexican government intends to explore, and archaeologists all over the world will watch with interest the efforts made to penetrate the secret of ancient Mitla.

EVERYTHING BUT OFFICIAL.

Postmistress of Buchanan's Time Turned In Some Interesting Information.

When it was first arranged, nearly 50 years ago, to have postmasters send in quarterly reports many queer documents were received. One, which is still in the postoffice department, came from the little town of Waterford, Ill., and is as follows:

"July the 9, 1850—Master James Buchanan, President of the United States—Dear Sir: Ben required by the instructions of the postoffice to report quarterly. I now fulfill that plain duty by reporting as follows: The Harvestin' has been goin' on pretty well and most of the naburs have got thur cuttin' about dun, wheat is hardly an average crop, on rollin' lans corn is yellowish and won't cut more than ten or fifteen bushells to the akir and the health of the comittie is only tolerably meellis and colery hav broke out in about 2 and a half miles of hear thair are a powerful awaken on the subjes of religin in the pottanaburhood and more souls are bean made to know thair sins forgiven miss nancy Smith a near nabur had twins day before yesterday and one of them is a poor scraggy thing and won't live half its days this is about all I know and have to report this quarter give my respects to Mrs. Buchanan and subscrib myself your Trooly, Abagail Jenkins."

THE DISAPPOINTED SUITOR

Young Lady Would See Him, But She Expected Somebody Else.

Admiral Evans, at a dinner at Narragansett, relates the New York Tribune said, apropos of disappointment:

"A young planter whom I knew in my youth in Virginia was in love with a girl of great beauty. She had many suitors, and to all of them she was more partial than to my friend. But he, though snubbed continually, remained faithful.

"One Sunday evening when he called the girl's little brother admitted him. The youngster led him into the parlor, went upstairs to announce his name, and then, returning, said:

"'Sit down, Mr. Sparker. She will see you in a few minutes.'

"Sparker said in a relieved and cheery voice:

"'I am glad of that. I was afraid she might ask to be excused, as she has done so often before.'

"'No fear of that this time. I played a trick on her,' said the little brother.

"'How was that?' Sparker asked.

"'Why,' said the lad, 'I pretended you were some one else.'

GERM-DEVOURING CELLS.

Nature's Method of Healing Wounds and Preventing Putrefying Process.

To the white corpuscles of the blood, as also to all those similar "freely moving cells" of the lymphatic glands of the nerve fluids (those colorless liquids which lubricate the sinews, the spinal marrow, the walls of the stomach, etc.), Prof. Metchnikoff has given the name of phagocytes—"cells which devour," and phagocytosis is simply the general term which denotes their action, writes N. E. McFarlane, in McClure's Magazine.

If you have run a pin into your thumb or received a bayonet thrust at Fort Arthur precisely the same thing takes place. A myriad of these tiny "first aid" cells from the surrounding blood vessels and lymphatic glands at once come hurrying to the rescue. They begin to clean up whatever wreck there has been made in the skin and muscular tissue. They eagerly absorb into themselves or cluster oppositely about all foreign matter that has been introduced into the wound. Then they proceed to pile themselves tier upon tier around it like so many little sandbags about a broken bastion. Later they gradually join together and solidify into the layer of new skin which appears beneath the sloughed-off scab. They are at once workmen and repairing material.

But, as the father of antiseptics pointed out, they also have to struggle against microbes of putrefaction. And here there is something very like an actual battle. Still more, in so far as it lies in the capacity of the defenders, the invading germs are not only killed; they are likewise swallowed and digested! Nor is this merely an occasional miracle. It is taking place almost without intermission in the pores of the skin and the digestive tubes, in the spongy walls of the mouth and nostrils and throat and lungs—wherever, indeed, the attacking microbes seek to find entrance. Where we are protected once by spoon-administered medicines we are protected a thousand times by the power of an innumerable army of microscopic stomachs!

OVERLOOK THEIR BACKS.

As a Consequence Some Women Go Out Only Partly Buttoned Up.

"When women wear clothes that fasten in the back and can't afford a maid to put them together, they had better take a look in a mirror before starting out," said the fastidious woman, in a voice which plainly indicated, says the New York Sun, that she had much more to say on the same subject. "I have just come from a promenade on the avenue and I saw enough careless dressing to make me first weep and then wax indignant.

"No smart French woman would be guilty of such carelessness. One woman who wore a white waist buttoned up the back had omitted two of the buttons; another had buttoned one into the wrong hole.

"A third woman had allowed her belt to slip up and show her skirt binding, and a fourth had forgotten to fasten her placket together, and all the nice little invisible fasteners were in full view mutely crying to be put right.

"The worst example of all wore a beautiful hand embroidered waist, fastened in the back, a smart new belt with a pointed and buckled back and a tailored skirt which came together with two plaits in the back. If these had all met, as they should, and preserved an unbroken line, the effect would have been smart and trim, but each hit her at a different point, spoiled her shape and proclaimed her for a careless dresser."

VIRGINIA HAM AND COOKING

Dishes Which Are Prepared in No Other State as They Are There.

We believe there is no ham in the world, for example, equal to the Virginia product, even as raw material, and we feel sure that this luxury is cooked nowhere as deliciously as on its native heath, says the Richmond Times-Dispatch. There are vegetables also which have no flavor such as is imparted by the old-time Virginia cook. When visiting abroad we have sometimes called for "cynillas," and we have been served with a mushy, insipid dish which no true Virginian could tolerate. It is to the old-fashioned Virginia "fried cynilla" as moonlight is to sunlight, or as water is to wine. We might prolong indefinitely the list of delicacies, but we conclude by simply naming that dish of all dishes which was born in Virginia, and which is the pride of every first-class Virginia cook—it makes one's mouth water to think of it—Brunswick stew.

We have sometimes thought that it was this savory stew which the wily Jacob used to tempt his brother's appetite, and that it was lost to the culinary art to be revived by a Virginia cook. And when that thought has come to us we have had great sympathy with Esau.
